The Students Ball

BRILLIANT SUCCESS ATTAINED AT THE SECOND HOSPITAL BENEFIT

The second annual student's ball, given in aid of the George Washington University Hospital, last Wednesday night at the New Willard, was in every way a pronounced success, and marks the opening of a long and brilliant season in the Capital City. It was given under the auspices of the Board of Lady managers of the Hospital who succeeded in bringing together over 1,000 friends of the University, made up of official and resident society, a large representation of the students of the George Washington University, and a bevy of young ladies from the local seminaries. Beautiful women and gallant men danced to the music of Haley's Orchestra in the red ball room from 9:30 to the early hours of the morning; twenty-four numbers being on the program; nearly every one receiving an encore. "The University March," composed by Mr. W. T. Pierson, an alumnus of the University, was played during the intermission. A buffet supper was served in the pink room from eleven to one. The menu was quite elaborate. The decorations of the ball room consisted of a graceful grouping of palms in front of the musicians' gallery, and at the north end of the room where the receiving party stood, while there was an effective arrangement of greens in the south gallery and about the windows. In the recess of every window were crossed pennants displaying the monogram of the university, made of the newly adopted colors, blue and buff, flags of the stars and stripes of the nation, while above the band stand crowned by three small silk flags hung a large gold framed portrait of Washington. In order to subdue the incandescent lights to an enchanting softness, they were artistically shaded with buff silk.

The guests were presented to the ladies of the receiving party by several students of the medical school, who served as masters of ceremonies. The hostesses of the evening were Mrs. Chaffee, Mrs. Henry Kirke Porter, Mrs. St. George Tucker, Mrs. Needham, Mrs. C. W. Richardson, Mrs. Oliver Cromwell, Mrs. Charles J. Bell, and Mrs. H. C. Yarrow. The list of patronesses printed in our last issue were present in large numbers and represented the most prominent women in Washington society.

A New Game

THE VARSITY HALF BACK ATTENDS THE STUDENTS BALL.

The occasion was one dear to the hearts of George Washington University students and one that eventually will be the greatest event of the school year in Washington, the Student's Ball for the benefit of the University Hospital. Everybody who could do so attended, and those who could not go were privileged to buy tickets. There was one person who decided one moment to go, and then was seized with a cold sweat the next moment, at the thought of being at a dance, for he had never set foot inside a dance hall and had never seen the trick turned in a real stylish manner. Finally, however, the Half-back on the Varsity screwed up sufficient courage to buy two tickets (just to help out the hospital,) and carried them around in his pocket a long time before he came to the realization that it would be wrong not to afford some of the pleasure of using the extra ticket (for no lady would care for his company since he could not shuffle his No. 10 trilbys to a tune with a name that sounds like "Down on the Beautiful Danube River," or something like that.) A lady was found, however, who knew not of his failings in that direction, and on the night of the dance, the football player secured one of these street ambulances usually called a cab, and in due time appeared at the New Willard in a worse condition of nervousness than he experienced when his light weight team went against the heavy weights from Georgetown. As the football player had not yet gotten the ring of signals out of his ears and his thoughts were still confusing every subject in a vision of footballs, etc., he could view the incidents of the evening only in the light of football experiences and parlance. His coloration of the occasion may be summed up in the following words:

Since there were no marks on the field he asked about the boundaries of the ground and was told simply not to run over the bleachers where spectators were grouped about the room, and to keep an ear on the grand stand where the musicians were located. The uniforms of the players were quite varied. Some wore practically the uniforms with the same amount of padding. Some wore a great deal of padding, while those in the pink of condition and in good training, wore scarcely any padding and some wore as scant uniforms as the rules of the game would allow. The game of the evening was divided into two halves, which consisted of twelve scrimmages each. Anybody could play, and the gentlemen were privileged to select their own opponents, but were required to stick by her throughout the entire scrimmage, which usually lasted about ten minutes. If the ladies liked the aggressive work of their opponents they encored the scrimmage. The halfback regretted the absence of headgears, for several times a wisp of his opponent's long hair would blow into his mouth, and he would be forced to bite it off and swallow it in order to save any embarrassment. A new rule to the player was that he must catch hold of his opponent and hold tight all the time or else he would be disqualified and hooted off the field by the best players. And instead of tackling low at the knees, as he had been coached to do all the season, he was required to tackle high around the waist and carry the victim along.

These handicaps made the halfback timid about entering the contest, so he watched the first scrimmage from the side lines. He saw what he thought were foul tackles but no one seemed to mind, and he determined to try it himself. The first lady he asked to enter a scrimmage with him said she couldn't do it, and then he found out no one would play unless they liked him, so he tried again and found a player who was a stranger, and too polite to refuse. When the orchestra leader blew his whistle the halfback got off in good form, made a sure tackle and seeing an opening in the scrimmage line made a dash, hurdled three swell trains attached to the dresses of players slow in starting, and started down the field with a ball of ribbons, smiles, roses and giggles under his arm. He met some interference, however, and unconsciously gripped the ball tighter, and had to be reminded that such was not allowed, or at least was not considered to be good form, and that the rules strictly forbid any rough play. He got around the interference by executing a revolving wedge to the right, then tried another on the left and was in hopes of scoring before the scrimmage was over, when he inadvertently violated one of the strictest rules, by interfering with the movements of the feet of another player; was ruled off for offside play, and tripping, and the great line plunger was sent to the side lines to watch the rest of the scrimmage with his chin resting on the front part of his collar. One great trouble with the halfback was that he missed his spikes and several times nearly lost his footing. The training his mind received in football, however, enabled him to grasp the style of play and after a few scrimmages he got into fairly good form. One thing that impressed him, as he pressed his opponent, that instead of wanting to put his opponent out of the game, he grew more and more attached to them and was delighted with the defense they put up. Some of the ladies were puzzled as to what step the halfback was using and ventured to inquire. He explained that it was what is known as the football quadrille, adapted to either a two-step or a waltz, and was taken for the most part from the steps in a bear dance seen in the bear den at the Zoo.

At the close of the first half, the intermission was given over to refreshments and stimulents, and it is needless to say that the halfback needed no coaching at that part of the game, and also began to see where he was getting his money's worth, and was very careful to look after the wants of his fair opponent. After a few scrimmages in the second half the halfback noticed that his opponent was leaning very heavily upon him and evidently weary; so he called the ambulance and took her to her home. After he arrived home the noted football player examined himself for bruises and wounds and discovered that all he received was a $15 kick in the pocket-book, and a funny feeling about the heart that sort of tickled him and kept him awake with the thought that his greatest misfortune is, that one year will elapse before another ball like the last one will take place.

A Witness.

Dramatic Club

The regular weekly meeting of the Dramatic Club was held Monday last, at 6:30.

The attendance was larger than at any previous meetings and not a few names were added to the already long list of members. Never before has such interest been manifested in this branch of university activity.

Mr. Robert Hickman, the dramatic coach, whose services will most probably be secured for the club, was to have been present to give an informal talk, but for some reason he did not show up.

The first business before the club was the selection of a treasurer and to this position Mr. Richards was elected.

On motion by Miss Warn, a committee consisting of Messrs. Hemmick, Cook and Miss Barbour, was appointed to select in conference with Mr. Hickman, a play to be presented during the month of January. The report is to be rendered at the next meeting, and rehearsals will begin at once. A full attendance is requested at the next meeting when Mr. Hickman will surely be present and final arrangements made for the first production.

The University Council at its last meeting appointed Drs. Hodgkins, Carroll and Professor Veditz as an advisory committee to the Dramatic Club and the officers of the club hope to have a full conference with them before next Monday.

Glee Club

The rehearsal of the Glee Club last week was held on Friday evening, having been postponed from Wednesday, on account of the student's ball.

About thirty applicants were present and some preliminary practice was held. Mr. Roderick, the new director, has shown himself to be a most capable leader and under his direction great things are looked for. He has expressed himself as highly pleased with the material he has to work with, but there is still need for more singers. The weekly rehearsals of the club are held on Wednesday evenings at 6:40 in University Hall, and all those who have the invitation or ability to join should present themselves at that time. If the time of rehearsal is such that members cannot attend, another evening will be fixed upon for it.

The Orchestra

The orchestra will meet hereafter on Wednesday evenings at 7:30 instead of Monday. This change was necessitated by the inability of several members to be present on Monday. The number who have turned out thus far for practice is disappointing, but nevertheless those in charge are confident of gathering together a strong and able organization.

The change of rehearsal assures the attendance of at least two new members and the director earnestly requests that all those in the University who play an instrument will come out on Wednesday night and help to make this movement a success.

The Architects

The students of the Architectural Class went en loge for their first Beaux Arts esquisse, Saturday December 3rd, at 3 P. M. They were allowed until midnight to finish the sketch. The results were by no means discouraging, although at first glance the program seemed an unseemly jumble. Every two months a problem is to be given, and the esquisse—esquisse, or sketchy sketch must be made at one sitting of nine or ten hours at the most. No models, books, plates, or helps of any kind are allowed. At the Academy in Paris the students literally go in separate lodges or cells, alone, for that time, but we have only a rigorous honor system. The sketches are sent to New York and the students have two months in which to make their finished drawings to be sent to New York and judged.

On the evening of December 16, Mr. Frere Champney will give a criticism on three sets of drawings and announce the result of the committee of award consisting of Messrs. H. L. Harris, E. Frere Champney and Professor Percy Ash, as follows:

For the elephant house for a public park, first place was given to R. Bruce Atkinson, and first second mention to Delos Smith and W. I. H. Fleming.

First place for the orangerie for a palace garden was given to R. Bruce Atkinson.

Charles Merwin, who is now at the University of Pennsylvania, won first place for bank, although much praise was given to Charles Lombard's design.

Theta Delta Chi

Theta Delta Chi gave another informal smoker Friday evening, December 9th, at the fraternity house. A number of the fraternity's friends were guests, and spent a pleasant evening in singing and general merry-making.

Phi Sigma Kappa

The Phi Sigma Kappa Fraternity enjoyed another of their delightful smokers at the fraternity home, 1715 De Sales street on Saturday evening of last week.

The "at home" spirit that always pervades these gatherings, was more than usually apparent while the entertainment was exceptionally fine. In the early part of the evening Mr. Klenpfel, of Cornell, entertained them by many of those songs that teem with college life, and later Mr. Alexis Many, late of Pratt Institute, New York, and of Paris, held them enraptured by his rendition of Beethoven and the other masters.

A delightful supper was served in the spacious dining room by the fraternity caterer, who amply justified the reputation he has gained since the frat has been serving meals in the house.

This is one of a series of Saturday evening entertainments inaugurated in September, and to continue throughout the year.

Columbian College

The Sophomore Club was entertained at the home of Miss Burroughs last Wednesday, December 7th. The first part of the evening was devoted to progressive euchre, at which Miss Sherman and Mr. Block were the successful contestants, each receiving a handsome prize. Later the company sat down to a dainty supper, after which Miss Cochran and Mr. Macdonald informally rendered several pleasing musical selections.

The Sophomore Dance Committee held a meeting Thursday evening, December 8th, at the home of Mr. Newbold. Plans for the dance were discussed at some length; a number of committees were appointed to look after the details of the affair, and no effort will be spared to make this one of the most pleasing social functions of the college year. The date for the dance is Wednesday, December 21, and arrangements have been completed by which the dance hall at the Victoria, Fourteenth and Welling Place, has been secured for that night.

The wintry winds of the past week have whistled up a very merry and wide awake skating club among college people. Congenial spirits all, and most enthusiastic for the sport, they already have some rousing good times planned in case the cold weather lasts. Hidden in the country about Washington are many little known but most attractive skating places, and the members of the club are deeply versed in all their various delights and possibilities. Just now, the fine snow on the ground, splendid moonlight and rare good ice, have furnished a most auspicious beginning for the winter's sport. Hail to the reign of the bob-sled party and the moonlight skate!

Enosinian Society

A special meeting of the Enosinian Debating Society was called Friday, December 9th, at 12:30 P. M., for the purpose of considering a question for the debate with Washington and Lee. Several subjects were proposed, all of sufficient public importance to make their discussion interesting, but it was decided that the question should be based on the general subject of immigration. It was left to the committee in charge of the matter, Mr. Solyom, Mr. Gates, Mr. Van Vleck, to decide the exact wording to be used. When their decision is made it will be submitted to Washington and Lee as a substitute for the question previously sent by them.

The Co Eds

On Wednesday, December 7, at the noon hour, there was held in West Hall a meeting of the Woman's League of George Washington University. Although as the first Wednesday of the month, it was the date for the regular meeting, it was deemed advisable by the Executive Committee, in view of the small amount of business to be transacted, to do away with regular meeting, and to hold two sessions, that every girl might have a vote, without being required to remain at college three or four hours for a meeting which would last but ten minutes.

The noon session was largely attended. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the advisability of holding an informal social meeting, to which all the girls of the College should be invited, that the object of the League might be fostered by this meeting together of its members and those eligible to membership. A motion was made and carried to the effect that a social meeting of such nature be held in the College library on Tuesday evening, December 13, from 7:30 to 10. The motion was also made and carried that the president be empowered to appoint a committee to have in charge all arrangements for such a function. A third motion was made and carried that the wives of the members of the Collegiate faculty be asked to serve as patronesses to the organization. After a statement of the time and place of next meeting the session was adjourned.

At 6:30 in West Hall, there was held a second session of the League, at which Miss Sherman, the third vice-president presided. The voice of the meeting was in favor of the motions which had been carried at the noon session.

The president appointed the following committee to have in charge arrangements for the social meeting: Misses Salisbury, Sherman, McMann and Allen. The committee met at noon on Thursday, and after appointing Miss Fields, Burgdorf, Harrington, Watkins, McMillan, Weyghel, Connor, Raber, Johnson, McMillan as their chairman, set to work at plans for the evening's entertainment. Invitations have been sent to every girl connected with the University in the capacity of student, and preparations are being made for an evening of music and social intercourse. It is hoped that a large number will be present.

The Girls' Glee Club, whose preliminaries of organization took place on Thursday, December 1, held its first regular meeting on Thursday, the 8th. There was a large number present, and all took hold of the work in a manner which seems to point toward this as one of the most successful of the year's College organizations.

After the assignment of parts, work was begun in earnest on Mendelssohn's "Greeting." In the absence of the accompanist, Miss Birch, Miss Taylor played the part. There is an unusual number of good voices, which, together with the enthusiasm which is displayed, promise an organization of unusual merit.

1808 PENNA. AVE., N. W.

The next issue of "The Hatchet" will be the last until after the holidays. All announcements for holiday dances, smokers and other social affairs should be handed in by Monday night so as to be sure of publication.

As previously announced in "The Hatchet," the Glee Club has been reorganized for the current school year with every prospect of a most successful season. Mr. Roderick assumed the duties of director of the club and the beneficent results of his leadership are already apparent.

It is designed this year to make the Glee Club a worthy representative of our growing university, and several concerts, both at home and in adjacent cities are being planned with a view to extending George Washington's reputation and influence. Faculty assistance is almost assured and with our able director, the unprecedented success of the club, both as a musical organization and as an aid to our university's progress, now depends upon the student body alone. The initial enrollment has been very encouraging, about thirty men having presented their names. But this is not half the number which should turn out.

The weekly rehearsals last only about forty minutes, and offer a pleasant and not inconvenient method of promoting the growth of our institution.

Mr. William Todd has authorized the manager to announce that he will at once start about organizing a guitar and mandolin club. Mr. Todd's ability in this line is too well known to need any comment.

With the Orchestra and Girls' Glee Club progressing finely, and with the Glee Club and Mandolin Club under such able leadership as that of Messrs. Roderick and Todd, the prospects for a most successful season for our musical representations are bright indeed.

Let every man who has ability for any of these organizations come out and help the good work.

Lecture for the Athletic Association

On or about January 20th, Mr. Barry Bulkley will deliver his lecture on the Yellowstone Park, at the Columbia Theater, for the benefit of the George Washington Athletic Association. Mr. Bulkley is well known as a lecturer, and upon this subject he is especially qualified to speak. In addition upon this occasion his lecture will be illustrated with stereoptican views. Last winter he delivered the same lecture in Washington and it met with a most favorable reception. Mr. Bulkley offered to give the Athletic Association the lecture free of charge and they have decided to take advantage of his offer. The managers of the Columbia Theater have also offered the free use of their theater.

Inter-Society Debate

The first inter-society debate for the present year between the Columbian and Needham Debating Societies will take place on Friday evening in University Hall. The question is the same as that for the Virginia debate, "Resolved that labor unions should incorporate as a condition precedent to demanding recognition by employers."

The Columbian with the affirmative of the question, will be represented by Julius A. Teller, of Vermont, Carlos A. Badger, Utah, and Allen G. Flowers, of South Carolina; the Needham by James H. Price, of South Carolina, Adam M. Beeler, of Indiana, and Leonine Bone, of Illinois.

Hon. W. W. Brown, Auditor for the Navy Department; Professor Walter C. Clephane, the George Washington University; and Professor Earnest G. Lorenzen, the George Washington University, will act as judges. Mr. J. W. Barrett, president of the Columbian Society, will preside.

The boxes in the hallways of the building are for the use of all.—They are intended for copy, subscriptions, suggestions, etc. Your copy for publication on Wednesday must be in by ten o'clock Tuesday morning.

The University Congress

A resolution looking to the enforcement of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution was negatively decided at the last meeting. The question naturally elicited sectional feeling and debated largely upon personal opinion. About the only argument adduced came from the negative.

The value of evidence in debate was amply shown by the introduction of personal experience by the member from South Carolina. While half the speakers on the negative took positions inconsistent with his evidence, it had to be met and took time which the affirmative could not afford to lose. The incident had its effect on a decision which was merited by the discussion.

The question for next Saturday evening and the members who are to lead the debate follow. Visitors are cordially invited. The question is: "Resolved, by the University Congress in regular session assembled, That a Constitutional amendment be submitted to the several States enabling the citizens of the District of Columbia to vote." The affirmative will be lead by Mr. Price, of South Carolina and Mr. Beck. The speakers in charge of the negative are Mr. Fisher, of the District of Columbia, and Mr. Baker, of Tennessee.

Law Notes

The Second Year Law Class will hold its first smoker of this year Thursday night, December 15, at the Shoreham Hotel. The members of the law faculty have all promised to be there.

Arrangements have been made for several interesting invitations and a good time is assured to all who attend. With a class of one hundred and twenty-five enthusiastic members there should be a record attendance and present indications point that way. A number of tickets have already been sold.

The First Year Law Class completed its organization last Thursday by the election of Mr. Richmond as Treasurer and Mr. Steenerson as Sergeant-at-Arms.

Messrs. Gammon, Morris, Hunt, Aims and Richmond were appointed as a committee to draft a constitution to be submitted to the class. The class heartily approves and adopts the honor system urged by Dean Tucker, and intends that every member shall feel that what concerns the class as a whole, concerns him individually, and that he cannot escape his share of the responsibility for anything that effects the class.

Medical Notes

Quite a number of subscriptions to the "deSchweinitz Memorial Tablet" fund remain unpaid, and the medical editor takes this opportunity to ask that the same be sent to him as soon as possible. It is hoped that the amount will soon be large enough to pay for the tablet, at which time the committee will place the order for it.

Smithie—"Why did you think Mire had not been to dinner?"

Dentic—"Because, when Professor Nichol threw the picture of a tooth on the stereopticon screen, Mire said he longed to see a large porterhouse attached to it."

Prof. Carr—"What is the active principle of saliva, Mr. Smartcuss?"

Mr. Smartcuss—"I don't just remember, Professor, but I have it on the tip of my tongue."

In his "Poems from the Greek Anthology," Dr. Garnett includes the following plea to Venus from a love-sick and evidently needy physician:

I, an enamoured doctor, fain would give,
Venus, to thee a generous donative
That fair Callistrata thou might'st incline
To cease from maiden coyness, and be mine;
But sickness has not much prevailed of late,
And I perceive with grief my purse's weight
Sorts with liberal intent but ill:
Wherefore I pray that thou wouldst take a pill.

The Columbian Women.

The regular monthly meeting of the Columbian Women was held on Monday, December 12, at 4:30 o'clock. Besides the admission of six new members no business of importance was transacted and after a short session the meeting adjourned.

Alumni Notes

Our Alumni are busy all along the line and are doing their best to keep abreast of the new life and activities of their Alma Mater. The latest indication of this is to be found in Salt Lake City, Utah, where an Alumni Association of the George Washington University was recently formed, with Mr. Maxwell R. Brothers as its first secretary. Arrangements for a permanent organization are rapidly being completed, and a letter from Mr. Brothers to President Needham tells of the great enthusiasm shown and the prospects for building up a strong organization in that city.

Our Alumni in other cities where there is no such organization should take the hint from this and get together, as the phrase goes. We have a number of such organizations in various cities, one even in Seattle; but we need and ought to have more in this, our era of growth and expansion.

The Alumni are well represented on the Inaugural Committee which is now preparing for the fourth of next March. Mr. Cortel-you, himself an alumnus, as Chairman of the National Republican Committee had the duty of selecting the chairman of the Inaugural Committee, and his choice fell upon General John M. Wilson, who holds an honorary degree from our University, and is also an enthusiastic member of the Alumni Association. To mention only a few of the members of this committee who are also George Washington Alumni: Mr. John B. Larner is chairman of the subcommittee on parks and reviewing stands; Mr. Aldis B. Brown, chairman of the subcommittee on legislation; Mr. B. H. Warner, chairman of the subcommittee on civic organizations.

Mr. William A. Greene, LL. B. 1901, is now in Seattle, Washington, where he is engaged in the practice of his profession.

The following clipping is taken from the Washington Post of December 11th:

"Senator Newlands, of Nevada, yesterday announced the engagement of his youngest daughter, Frances, to Lieutenant Leopold von Bredow, of the German army. Lieutenant von Bredow is an officer of the Cuirassier regiment of the guard stationed at Berlin. He was an attache of the German Embassy in this city during 1903."

Miss Newlands was for four years a member of the College class of 1899 and received the degree of B. S. in the spring of that year.

The law firm of Fuller, Fitz Gerald & Kennedy has just been formed in Cleveland, Ohio, with offices in the Williamson Building. The first member of the firm, Mr. Hubert Bruce Fuller, holds the degree of A. B. and LL. B. from our University, while Mr. William S. Fitz Gerald, the second member of the firm is an LL. B. of 1902.

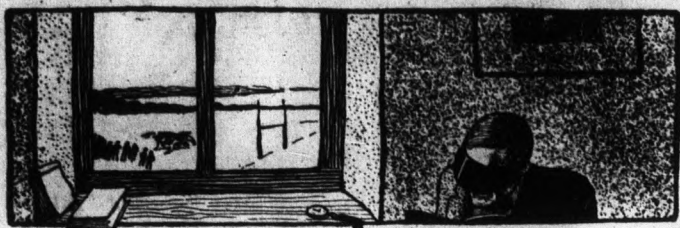

The Supreme Court of the United States Nov. 28th decided the famous Daniel Fayerweather will case, which has been pending in the courts for thirteen years. It sustains the judgment of the New York courts, which decided in favor of the colleges to which funds had been bequeathed, and against the executor, widow and two nieces.

Former Secretary of War Root was one of the counsel in the case and the amount involved in about $7,000,000.

Fayerweather was a wealthy New York leather merchant. By his will certain amounts were left to five hospitals and to the following colleges: Bowdoin, Dartmouth, Williams, Amherst, Wesleyan, Yale, Columbia, Union Theological, Hamilton, Rochester, Cornell, Lafayette, Lincoln, Virginia, Hampton, Maryland, Marietta, Adelbert, Wabash and Park.

Now besides the fixed amounts willed to each college and university they will share in the residuary estate receiving one-twentieth part each. The hospitals do not come under this decision.—L.X.

College World

Dr. R. S. Woodward, dean of the Faculty of Pure Science of Columbia University, has been chosen President of the Cornegie Institution, to succeed Dr. Daniel C. Gilman resigned.

Bowdoin College recently celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Nathaniel Hawthorne, a graduate of that institution in 1825.

Tokio is the largest university in the world. Forty-eight thousand Japanese are studying at it, the favorite courses being law and civil and mechanical engineering.

Columbia and Minnesota have arranged for a basketball game in New York on the 6th of February. The arrangement is as yet only provisional, but the indications are that it will take place.

The Annual Register of the United States Naval Academy for the year 1904-5 has been issued. It shows the number of midshipmen in the Academy to be 823, the largest number ever in the institution at the end of a scholastic year.

Early next spring President Hadley of Yale, will take a trip South to meet the Yale alumni associations of Savannah, New Orleans, Alabama, and perhaps Texas.

The trip is taken for the purpose of bringing the Yale interests of the South in closer touch with the university.
